Williams Family Law Attorneys Honored by 2019 Super Lawyers

Doylestown, PA – Four attorneys from Williams Family Law, P.C. have been named to the 2019 Pennsylvania Super Lawyers list, a research-driven, peer-influenced rating system that recognizes attorneys who consistently hold themselves to the highest professional standards. Founder and Managing Partner Jeffrey M. Williams and Associate Lynelle A. Gleason were named to the Super Lawyers list, a designation awarded to just 5 percent of the attorneys in the state. Associates Melanie J. Wender and Shauna L. Quigley were named to the Rising Stars list, awarded to just 2.5 percent of attorneys in the state.

Jeff Williams has been selected to Super Lawyers annually since 2005. He primarily handles complex high net-worth divorces, alimony/spousal and child support issues, and custody cases. As the legal representative for a non-birth mother, Williams successfully litigated one of the first significant same-sex child custody cases in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

2019 marks Lynelle Gleason's Super Lawyers debut. She has spent her legal career in Bucks County, representing local families in Pennsylvania family law and estate law. She works with her clients through all phases of negotiation, and if necessary, litigation. She drafts wills and trusts and administers estates, and also offers customized mediation services.

Melanie Wender and Shauna Quigley have each been selected to Rising Stars for the second consecutive year. Wender handles all issues surrounding the complexities of divorce, such as equitable distribution, custody and support. Quigley's work encompasses family law, divorce, support, property distribution, child custody, and protection from abuse.

Those selected by Super Lawyers are evaluated on 12 indicators of professional achievement and are also assessed by their peers. Candidates are eligible for the Rising Stars designation if they are age 40 or younger or have been in practice 10 years or less.
