Patents

With the rapid advancement of new technologies in virtually all areas of science, patents continue to be one of the most important ways to protect intellectual property rights. Our attorneys recognize this and rely on their wealth of experience and knowledge to successfully guide clients through the patent process. Widely recognized as leaders in the field of intellectual property law, our attorneys are adept at handling all aspects of the patent process.

This broad range of expertise includes the preparation and prosecution of patent applications in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office and foreign patent offices, new product clearance, due diligence and patentability analyses. Whether the case at hand is domestic or international in scope, the firm has the resources required to consistently meet and exceed client expectations. The firm's attorneys hold degrees in a broad range of scientific disciplines, covering areas such as electrical engineering, biology, chemistry, chemical engineering, and mechanical engineering. Further, many of the firm's attorneys possess extensive professional experience in their respective fields of expertise. Coupled with high legal acumen, this expertise allows our attorneys to effectively counsel clients and prosecute utility, design and business method patents in countless industries so that the likelihood of success is maximized.

Whether guiding a single inventor or a large corporation through the patent process, our attorneys dedicate themselves fully to ensuring that the client receives the most accurate legal and technical insights available. Inventors and innovators alike must be able to promptly understand with confidence what steps they can take to ensure that their new ideas will be protected to the greatest extent possible. Further, they require that such protections also correspond with and maximize their business interests. Our attorneys understand these needs and possess the technical expertise, experience, and legal savvy necessary to efficiently and effectively guide clients to the best possible legal resolution.
