| An Update on One Firm's Telecommuting Journey

Law firms around the country are rushing to get their employees set up to work remotely in the midst of the ongoing global pandemic of novel coronavirus. Panitch Schwarze Belisario & Nadel, however, already has developed a well-oiled, remote-working team approach.

Today, Panitch Schwarze is nearly two years into fully implementing telecommuting and office sharing policies, so a lot of people are asking us how it's going. The answer is simple: better than expected.

Our firm administrator, Krista Hart, shares the things we've learned in an article for Law Practice Today. Entitled "Two Years In: How Telecommuting Has Improved Panitch Schwarze's Operations and Team Morale," the article includes valuable insight regarding approaches that have worked for our firm as we have equipped our team to work remotely.
