Dr. Jeffrey W. Gluck discussed the implications of Oracle v. Google

PHILADELPHIA (February 2019) – Panitch Schwarze partner Dr. Jeffrey W. Gluck recently participated in a presentation entitled “Oracle v. Google – Getting More (or Less) Than You Licensed” during the 2019 Mid-Winter meeting of the American Intellectual Property Law Association \(AIPLA\) in Tampa, Florida.

Oracle America, Inc. v. Google LLC is a series of related intellectual property law cases that have been making their way through the courts for nearly a decade. The latest decision in the cases was issued by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit in spring 2018. During the AIPLA program, Gluck discussed the cases’ implications for proprietary and open source software licensing.

An experienced intellectual property attorney, Gluck focuses his practice on electrical and computer-related technologies. He represents clients in a variety of areas, including patent counseling and opinions, licensing and transactions, interferences, patent prosecution, and re-examinations. He assists with trial litigation and has acted as lead attorney in appellate litigation.

Gluck brings a wealth of broad-based experience to his clients and colleagues, having worked as an engineer and researcher, as a university professor, and as a patent examiner in addition to his experience as a patent agent and patent attorney. While focusing mainly on multi-user, digital, wireless and satellite communications, he also has worked in the areas of signal processing and control systems.

Gluck is active in various bar association committees focusing on standards and open-source software. Read more of his thoughts related to Oracle v. Google here.

Formed in 1897 to encourage and maintain a high standard of professional ethics, AIPLA is a national bar association that is dedicated to the education, outreach and advocacy of intellectual property law. With more than 14,000 members, AIPLA members represent a wide range of professionals in the practice of patent, trademark, copyright, and other intellectual property matters.
